A non-technical study of human ecology
LIFE AND ENVIRONMENT
By Paul B. Sears
Presents the broad relationships of man and his society in an eminently readable fashion. Although not a textbook, this volume offers much to teachers of young people through its interpretation of the world in which we live. Cloth bound, $1.85

A story well told
THE CONTROL OF ORGANISMS
By Frederick L. Fitzpatrick
The story of man's efforts to suppress and dominate other living things. Describes methods of subduing the plants and animals that cause disease, and other types that make inroads upon human economy. This book will prove valuable in the home and school library, for physicians and nurses, and for all who are interested in science and health instruction.
Cloth bound, $2.75
